KILL TEAM MISSIONS

Kill Team missions are special types of games that are designed to be played in a single session. They are designed to be played in a single session and are designed to be played in a single session.

There are six missions to try out in your game of Warhammer 40k Kill Team. Each mission has its own special rules, objectives and challenges. Regardless of the mission, there will always be a few common rules to follow in play: Kill Team. All of which are provided below:

Minimum Battlefield: All Kill Team missions are designed to be played on a 10" battlefield.

Every Man for Himself: Most missions in a Kill Team are played as a game of survival. However, when playing your Kill Team, and throughout the course of the game, each model is treated as a separate unit. This means that models that are not attached to a larger unit, such as the Engineer Detachment, are treated as separate units. It is possible for the Independent Character special rule to remain in play even if the model is killed.

Strategic Initiative: Strategic Initiative rules are in effect at the start of each mission, regardless of which side they were assigned to. During Kill Team missions, however, each model that was assigned to a mission will follow the Kill Team selection, and will not be assigned a Strategic Initiative value for the game unless they are the Dominant Detachment.

There are four types of Kill Team: the Dominant Detachment, the Kill Team, the Kill Team, and the Kill Team. Each mission has its own special rules. Models cannot enter a Kill Team mission. If any models in your Kill Team are not attached to a larger unit, they are treated as separate units.

Starting Units: Unless specified otherwise in the mission, a Kill Team mission, all models are starting units.

The Dominant Detachment has the advantage, but every team has its own special rules. The mission objectives are not applied through the game. Control Range: Your Leader has a Control Range of 10". If your Leader is killed, your Leader power then Breaks, and all models within their Control Range automatically gain Break status. Models with the Bad They Shall Know Kill Team special rule will not Break.

CORDEX EXCEPTIONS FOR KILL TEAM MISSIONS
